

Government Relations

Florida

Leonard Collins focuses his practice on civil litigation, administrative litigation and state and federal elections law. He serves as counsel to various political campaigns, Florida political committees, federal super PACs, trade associations, and nonprofit organizations. Mr. Collins has also previously served as general counsel to U.S. Senator Marco Rubio and parliamentarian of the Florida House of Representatives, where he assisted members of the House with the application of the state constitution, the rules of the House, and parliamentary authority to legislative proceedings.

Leonard Collins

Doug Mannheimer has represented business and individuals before most of Florida's state agencies for more than 35 years, including the Agency for Health Care Administration, the Office of Insurance Regulation, and the Departments of Health, Transportation, Business, and Professional Regulation, Education, and Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles. Mr. Mannheimer has represented a variety of business clients before the Legislature since 1982, including healthcare associations, long-term care, physicians, telecommunications providers, highway safety providers, wastewater treatment providers, and medical equipment providers. He has served as legislative counsel for the Florida Health Care Association, Florida's largest long term care provider professional organization, since 1996.

Doug Mannheimer