

Government Relations

Maryland

Owen McEvoy is of counsel with more than 13 years of experience navigating local and state governments. He has served three governors and a county executive, which has provided him with critical insight to help navigate clients through the crucial intersection of business, government, and the law. As a pragmatic, bipartisan problem-solver, Owen has extensive experience working on complex public policy matters and initiatives involving housing, business financing, infrastructure, development, and public works matters.