Woojin Shin serves Korean companies primarily in the infrastructure, automotive, defense, and consumer goods industries. Mr. Shin regularly counsels Korean multinational companies on their corporate, financial, and regulatory issues. He understands the legal needs of Korean clients and provides creative and effective solutions to complex issues encountered in business transactions and operations in the United States and other countries.

He has special experience in economic development projects in which non-U.S. corporations establish and operate their manufacturing and R&D facilities in the United States.

In addition, Mr. Shin advises Korean corporate and governmental clients on U.S. federal and state government relations issues relating to U.S. trade policy and industry regulations. He provides Korean clients strategic counsel on U.S. policy issues combined with deep understanding in their business culture and objectives.

Prior to his legal career, Mr. Shin worked for the marketing team of a Korean subsidiary of a multinational financial company, where he served as an elected member of its labor management committee. He also served in the Korean Army and was stationed at the Capital Defense Command for 2.5 years.
