Non-compete agreements and other forms of restrictive covenants are important in safeguarding a company's business assets, including intellectual properties, trade secrets, and customer data. As more employers require their employees to sign non-compete agreements, disputes and litigation over the enforceability of these agreements have also increased.

Bret Cohen, a partner in Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP's Boston office and co-chair of the Firm's national labor and employment practice, will address strategies for non-compete litigation during The Knowledge Group/The Knowledge Congress Live Webcast Series' webcast entitled: "Non-Compete Agreements: Understanding Trial Techniques and Litigation Strategies Live Webcast." The event is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 8, 2018 beginning at 3 p.m. ET.
