

Insights

May 10, 2019

The Scrivener: Friday Afternoon Misery: Drafting Motions for Preliminary Injunctions and Temporary Restraining Orders

By Elizabeth Scott Moise
SC Lawyer

The call from your client never comes at a good time. It is almost always on a Friday. In fact, clients never even begin to think about a Temporary Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction until lunchtime on a Friday. Slipping out early for an afternoon boat ride is all you have had on your mind for maybe the whole week. Then the call comes, and drafting motions and affidavits in triple time is in your immediate future. You have no time to wallow in the mire, and the boat is going to have to wait.

View Article

View on Website

These materials have been prepared for informational purposes only and are not legal advice. This information is not intended to create, and receipt of it does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. Internet subscribers and online readers should not act upon this information without seeking professional counsel.

MEET OUR AUTHOR

Elizabeth Scott Moïse

Partner

T 843.534.4382

scott.moise@nelsonmullins.com